Girls Inc. leaders embrace new roles on board Peter Lacy begins role as Girls Inc. board chair

INDIANAPOLIS — Girls Inc. of Greater Indianapolis introduced the leadership team for their 2011 board of directors in January. These six board leaders will guide the organization through further growth and ensure that Girls Inc. continues to serve greater Indianapolis girls with positive and empowering programs.

Peter Lacy, of FinishMaster, Inc., began his role as board chair on January 1, 2011. The new leadership team for the Girls Inc. board of directors includes Linh Preston, consultant, first vice chair; Shaun Clifford, Baker & Daniels, second vice chair; Jennifer Banner, Fusion Alliance, secretary; Lisa Orr, Walker Information, treasurer; and Molly Martin, Lumina Foundation for Education, governance chair.

“We are thrilled to start the new year with a leadership team that will advance Girls Inc. in the next phase of our strategic expansion of services,” said Patricia Wachtel, President and CEO at Girls Inc. “Peter brings a passion for empowering girls and extensive management experience to the position as board chair.”

Lacy transitions to board chair following five years of volunteering for Girls Inc., three of which he served as a board member. Lacy’s interest in the organization sparked when he was searching for additional ways to connect with his daughters.

“I grew up as one of three brothers, so after my first two children were girls I started asking myself, who can teach you to be a good dad for girls? Who can help you teach your daughters they can do anything a boy can?” said Lacy. “I decided the words in the Girls Inc. mission statement – strong, smart, and bold – were exactly what I wanted my daughters to be. My daughters know how to stand up for themselves. We teach that at Girls Inc.”

“As Girls Inc. continues to expand its service area and number of programs offered, I’m excited for the opportunity to lead the organization as board chair,” said Lacy.
